

Seals and Seagulls

This is the sea. Seals live in the sea. Year after year, these seals swim to the same beach. The seals come to this beach to have their pups. Pups are baby seals.

Waves beat against the rocks at the beach. The waves break bits off the rocks. These rock bits turn into beach sand. The seal pups play on the rocks and on the beach sand.

Seagulls live at the beach, too. Seagulls use their beaks to catch their meals. A big fish is quite a feast! The seagulls take their feast onto the beach to eat.

Seals eat fish, too. Sometimes a seagull will try to steal a fish from a seal. This seagull reaches for the seal pup's meal. The mother seal barks at the seagull. The seagull will not get this pup's meal!
