

Joan's Boat

Joan has a shipping boat. Joan's boat goes from a big city to small towns far, far up the coast. Joan's boat brings loads of things from the city to people who live on the coast.

Joan ties her boat to the dock. Sea foam bloats by the boat as Joan unloads. Joan unloads big bags of oats for the farmers' goats. Joan unloads long oak logs so people can build homes.

Joan unloads boxes of foamy soap to wash clothes. Joan unloads boxes of new coats to keep people warm. At last, Joan is done unloading the whole boat. She watches the road for people.

Soon, people approach the boat to get Joan's load. The oak logs, the oats, the foamy soap, and the coats are loaded onto trucks. The trucks go down the road to take all the things to the people on the coast.
